How We Respond to “Do Not Track” Signals

Some web browsers have a “Do Not Track” feature. This feature allows you to tell websites you visit that you do not want to have your online activity tracked over time and across websites. These features are not yet uniform across browsers and not broadly supported. This website is not currently set up to respond to those signals.

We may use the personal information we collect for purposes such as:

- Reporting or data analytics services
- Customer and troubleshooting support
- Marketing notices, newsletter, or communications via email
- Marketing initiatives via surveys
 - If you participate in surveys, we will request certain personal information from you. Participation in these surveys or contests is completely voluntary and you have a choice whether to disclose this information. We may use a third-party service provider to conduct these surveys or contests. We will not share the personal information you provide through a contest or survey with other third parties unless we give you prior notice and choice.
- Error detection and debugging

How We Share Personal Information Collected

- This Program does not sell personal information about you to third parties.
- We may provide your personal information to third parties that provide services to help us with our business activities such as reporting or data analytics services, marketing notices, newsletter, or communications via email, and marketing initiatives via surveys. These companies are authorized to use personal information about you only as necessary to provide these services to us.

The Program may also need to share information with companies, organizations or individuals outside of the Program if we have a good faith belief that access, use, preservation, or disclosure of that information is reasonably necessary to:

Where appropriate or legally required, we will describe how your information that we collect through this website will be used and will provide choices about whether to allow us to engage in that use. To exercise your choice, you may discontinue information collection by discontinuing accessing the website or by voluntarily opting out of the SILIQ REMS Program altogether.
